About the Cover

A wintery view of the eastern side of the Sierra Nevada mountains is visible just the other side of the expanse of Mono Lake visible in the distance in this photo. Mono Lake was created roughly 750,000 years ago and sits in Mono Basin, itself formed over the last five million years, and given birth by volcanic forces extruding basalt and crumpling the surface of the earth. That's a lot older than the coins and token pictured on the cover. A lot older. What do you think will be there in five million more years?
